

ABSTRACT

Laser display system having at least more than two lasers, and a display panel for receiving an electrical picture signal, and regulating a quantity of light from the laser to form an image based on the electrical picture signal, including a light superimposer of optical fibers for superimposing the lights from the lasers, thereby improving an optical efficiency to provide a bright and clear picture.